Through this process the community has the opportunity to work collaboratively to address the effects of the crime, to repair the harm, address some of the root causes of the crime and, ultimately, to improve community safety and wellness. Diverting offenders away from the mainstream justice system is a discretionary tool used by

	police and prosecutors, with the consent of communities, for offences they view as more appropriate for out-of-court resolution. Generally speaking, this involves lesser offences. For all of these initiatives, the ACTC Community Program staff work in close partnership with elders, community justice committees and other agencies as necessary to provide relevant and meaningful community justice services. Other agencies the Program engages in its work include the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program, Social Development, Fine Options, Courtworkers and Health Services. (Dept. of Justice Canada, Agency Chiefs Tribal Council Community Justice Program)

Each of the MLFN's house a Justice Coordinator who provides direct services to the community in which they reside. The Justice Coordinators are responsible for all mediation files, fine options plans, court appearances, and other justice initiatives within their communities. We at MLTC provide advice and direction to the Justice Coordinators on the development and implementation of community justice structures, plans and services; and works to serve as a liaison with the FSIN Indian Justice Council, the Federal and Provincial Governments and Justice sector officials. The Justice program at MLTC invests in people and their future. With the guidance of our Elders we strive towards building stronger communities, safer communities, and healthier communities. The MLTC justice staff is dedicated to the principals of restorative Justice and works effectively and arduously to bring these initiatives to the 9 MLFN's. The MLTC Justice program works in conjunction with the MLFN's to ensure Justice Programs are educational, we work in creating awareness, and provide training and partnerships with these communities to provide assistance, guidance, and delivery of community based justice initiatives. (Meadow Lake Tribal Council) The Program coordinates the development of community justice structures, plans and services for nine member First Nations. Activities vary from community to community and include crime prevention; mediation and dispute resolution; healing, talking and sentencing circles; alternative measures programs for adults and youth; victim services; and community based correctional services that focus on offender rehabilitation and reintegration, and victim/offender healing. mediations, community justice forums and accountability meetings and/or conferences.

- Increases the offender's accountability to the victims and community.
- Helps reduce reliance on the formal Justice System for first and second time minor offences.

(Yorkton Tribal Council, Justice Unit)

Alternative Measures (AMP) is a pre or post charge program which diverts certain offences away from the formal court process. The offenders are dealt with through a mediation/diversion process, often including the victim (if applicable), in an attempt to resolve the crime out of court. If the matter is successfully resolved the offender will not end up with a criminal record for the offense. If the offender fails to complete the program the matter proceeds to court for further action.

The La Loche Alternative Measures/Extrajudicial Sanctions Program works with youth and adult offenders who come into conflict with the law. Alternative Measures is a program that diverts offenders away from attaining criminal records. AMP provides avenue for victims for possible reconciliation, restitution and restoration of peace and harmony. Alternative Measures include different options and is dependent upon each case. Possible Alternative Measures can include: 1. Victim/Offender Mediation Services are the heart of the reconciliation process. In that meeting, a third neutral

	party, a mediator facilitates the sharing of facts, feelings and concerns of both parties. 2. Multi-party Conferences are meetings, in which the victim, the offender, people who attend to support the victim or the offender, and members of the community meet to work out an agreement that satisfies the victim, meets the needs of the offender and gives members of the community a role in helping both parties. More specifically, AMP can arrange a 'Family Group Conference' or 'Community Accountability Forums' if the case involves young offenders and their families, or 'Community Justice Forums' if they involve adults. Alternative Measures Program offers referrals to counseling, guidance and support services for clients as needed. Alternative Measures Program keeps in touch with clients and informs everyone concerned, including Police and the Crown, with respect to the outcomes of the agreements and completions. (La Loche Friendship Centre) The objectives of the Program are to provide community based services related to crime prevention, public education, dispute resolution/peacekeeping and alternative measures including diversion, healing circles, family group conferencing and support programming for youth and adults in contact with the mainstream justice system. (Government of Canada) Youth Intervention Program The intent of the program is to guide youth to a better understanding on how their behaviour affects others within the community, and to make amends by giving back to the community in a meaningful way. Youth involved in the program will gain a new insight into the cause and effects of their behaviour. In addition, the program may help youth to develop new skills and interests, and to seek out new training and career opportunities being offered within the community. Through our program the CYIW will be encouraging the youth involved to continue with their education, increase
